

Danielle Menitove

Mediator / Arbitrator / Counsel to Independent Panelist Jeffrey Mishkin

Danielle Menitove is an independent arbitrator and mediator with experience in commercial and consumer disputes. She has particular expertise in complex sports-related disputes concerning antitrust, employment, intellectual property, gambling, anti-doping, player-agent issues, and other matters involving the interpretation of sport organizations' rules. Danielle serves as an arbitrator on the Court of Arbitration for Sport in Lausanne, Switzerland, the leading international arbitral forum for sports-related legal disputes, as well as on the American Arbitration Association's commercial, consumer, and national sports panels.

Danielle also is an adjunct professor at Columbia Law School, where she teaches Sports Corruption, Discrimination, and Equity Concerns in U.S. Sports.

Before transitioning to an ADR practice, Danielle was a litigator for more than ten years at Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP in New York. At Skadden, Danielle represented entities and individuals in all phases of complex litigation in federal and state court, as well as in foreign and domestic government investigations. Danielle's practice involved a myriad of diverse matters, including antitrust, breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, tortious interference, and unfair competition cases. In her sports practice, Danielle represented professional and amateur sports organizations, such as the PGA TOUR, National Football League, National Basketball Association, National Hockey League, Major League Baseball, and National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Danielle received her bachelor's degree from the University of Western Ontario, with a specialization in kinesiology. She graduated summa cum laude from Tulane University Law School, where she served as an editor of the Tulane Law Review and received a certificate of specialization in sports law. Following her graduation, Danielle clerked for the Honorable Sarah S. Vance in the Eastern District of Louisiana. She is admitted to the New York State Bar.
